STUDY THE MEISNER TECHNIQUE IN LONDON

THE NEIGHBORHOOD PLAYHOUSE GOES ABROAD

1WK MEISNER INTENSIVE WORKSHOP TAUGHT BY PAMELA MOLLER KAREMAN

This July, Executive Director Pamela Moller Kareman, brings this world-class acting technique to London. This workshop is a unique opportunity to experience the Meisner Technique as it was developed by Sanford Meisner at The Neighborhood Playhouse during his fifty-six years of teaching there. Workshop participants will be guided through core exercises including: improvisation, repetition, and independent activity culminating in working with text. This American acting technique is designed to improve the actor's concentration and strengthen the actor's instrument to be both responsive and expressive within the imaginary circumstances. The Meisner technique develops a more specific, skilled, and authentic actor with an organic, spontaneous, and disciplined instrument. Adults (18+ yrs) with all levels of experience are welcome to apply and register.

HOUSING:

Adding to this unique experience, classes will be held on the bucolic campus of Rose Bruford College of Theatre & Performance in the town of Sidcup. Located approximately twenty minutes from Charring Cross Station, students will be free to visit the historic sites of London during evenings and one full day. Nearby sites & attractions include: the Tower of London, West End theatre, free museums, Shakespeare's Globe, & more. Housing is single occupancy accommodations with private bath room with shower and are arranged as 'apartments' of six rooms with a shared, and fully equipped, kitchen. All bedding and towels are provided. The accommodation is self-catered but Rose Bruford College will provide all summer residents with vouchers for a hot or cold lunch on campus Monday to Friday.
